

Tommy Williams

tom@technomad.media - Royal Oak, MI

___ SUMMARY

Doing websites since college really got me acquainted with the terminal and command line. From there, building my own computers and running linux on them was a breeze. Getting to the bottom of problems is my expertise. In my last two jobs I swiftly learned industries I was not familiar with, with my favorite part of both of them being the customers.

Four Year Goal: to manage ecommerce for a digital media company

___ EXPERIENCE

2019 Winter-Spring - Hydro Capitol, Sales Associate served ~30 managers of ~50 accounts, customers and distributors troubleshoot customer problems/requirements and provided solutions learned various brands and the use of their different product lines as well as their inventory software and all the inner workings of it interacted with teams at other branches biweekly

2018 Fall - mc chris, Road Manager communicated digitally and physically with 50+ venues & staff drove 14,000+ miles and arranged lodging in 50+ cities sold $100k+ merchandise in venues with capacities from 75-500 loaded in and out both equipment and merchandise
did inventory weekly and managed logistics with resuppliers

2015-2017 - Solution People, Lead Website Engineer
I interned here in college and they kept me on for a couple years after. This business had 30+ websites each angled towards a different market. My job was to make the slight tweaks and updates to each one when new data come out. I did a couple redesigns, combined a few together, split other ones out, wrote a couple of scripts to streamline common methods.

2015 Summer-Fall - Original Graphics Printing, Contractor
I worked out of a print shop on the south side of Chicago who served a bunch of small local businesses doing visual branding: signs, decals for cars and windows, tshirts, and etc. I was brought on to add a website element to this. Because of the rate at which they acquired new clients, my website game morphed from updating a few dozen sites a couple times a week, to creating a new site from scratch and getting it perfect in a week or two.

since 2010 - techomad, software design and development
I started this business in college, during my transition out of art school: most of my friends were artists with loads of branding experience, but needed a platform to display and market their craft. Recently my clients have been more small businesses.

___ EDUCATION

DePaul University 2010-2015 - Bachelor of Arts, Psychology
Minor: Interactive & Social Media, UI/UX Design
Columbia College Chicago 2008-2010 Film, Music Composition University of Detroit Jesuit High School - Class of 2008

Thinking about getting a Masters in Computer Science

hobbies: cycling, martial arts, dancing, techno